The program, also, offers the possibility of cutting after modeling (MEM and NC). FLA The Form-Lift Automatic program for machining of molds, die castings, and welds. The characteristics of the program are listed below. Ability to work in multi-pass mode. It is also possible to perform multiple finishing passes. The program allows machining of the corners, critical geometry, and external contours. The program allows machining 3D models from NC files. Also, it allows cutting after modeling, taking into account the final geometry obtained from the NC files. The program's features: Multi-pass mode allows multi-pass with different tools. 3D modeling of the mold or die-casting. 3D modeling of the welding surface. The program also offers a simulation of machining errors. The program offers the possibility of cutting before modeling and after modeling. The form-lifting program FLA includes the following modes: 1. Mold 1. Molding There are 3 main operations (Basic Cutting, Milling, Hole-Making) in the program. The program allows finishing cuts and is used for machining plastic molds. The program also allows machining of a 3D model in the mold surface. The program also allows machining 3D models made in NC files. 2. Die-casting In the program there are 3 main operations: Machining, Milling, Hole-Making The program allows machining of various models, starting from 3D designs of an original model. The program allows cutting of the model along the axis of the spindle with the possibility of correcting the path after completion of machining. The program also allows automatic machining of 3D models made in NC files. 3. Welding The program has 3 main operations: Machining, Milling, Hole-Making The program is compatible with both NC files and STL files and allows cutting after modeling as well as before modeling. The program also allows 82157476af
